Ron Samborski consults nationally and internationally in the areas of educational reform, organizational development, change management and the integration of technology into learning environments. He has consulted in Canada, Central and South America and in the Middle East.

He has held positions as a Teacher and Principal as well as Superintendent and CEO of British Columbia School Districts. He has also served in the private sector at the senior executive level. Ron has been extensively involved in leadership development and teacher training programs. He is passionately committed to the facilitation of collaborative partnerships and distributed leadership to support innovation and successful change implementation within organizations and communities. He is just as passionate about roasting coffee!

Ron has been involved in a wide range of technology and distributed learning initiatives such as the implementation of the British Columbia Provincial Learning Network and the Wireless Writing Program. He is a founding member of the Northern Opportunities trades and technology career initiative. In addition to working in the Ministry of Education over a four-year secondment, Ron has also served on several provincial committees related to trades and technology training, school district reviews, educational reform and the meaningful integration of computer technology.

Ron is often asked to speak nationally and internationally on educational change. He and his wife Sylvia make their home in Victoria B.C. They enjoy cooking, reading, backpacking, canoeing and kayaking. They have four children, all of whom have left the nest.
